Statistics prove that only one man in six who emigrates does so with advantage.

Mark Trafton, the British evangelist, preaches to mankind the necessity for eating hearty breakfasts. He says they are a good bulwark against fate.

The great electric light that is to be placed on Mt. Washington's summit will probably be visible even as far away as Boston under a favorable atmospheric condition.

Mr. Hudson, the engineer who projected and constructed the St. Clair tunnel, predicts that in the Twentieth Century Boston will be forty miles long, twenty miles broad and have a population of 2,000,000.

In the year before the New Orleans lynching 484 Italians were arrested in the Crescent City. In the year following only 28 prisoners of that nationality were taken. There was no decrease in the number of Italian residents.

The public wealth in the United States is $1040 per inhabitant, as compared with $1235 in the United Kingdom of Great Britan and Ireland, and $700 in Germany. "We are doing pretty well, it would seem; in fact," remarks Once a Week, "looking up."

Chicago is going hereafter to paint all her lamp-posts, and iron bridges yellow instead of black. The commissioner says: "If the people generally would only consider how far first impressions go with strangers they might be willing to co-operate in this brightening-up process before the World's Fair opens. They might paint their houses—such houses as need painting—so as to look cheerful and make a good impression on the multitudes that will come here from all parts of the globe."

It is too bad, confesses the New York World, that the Board of Lady Managers of the World's Fair cannot find among all the American women who make a profession of music some one of sufficient ability to write a dedicatory march. In 1889 Mme. Augusta Holmes, a French lady of Irish extraction, composed the "Ode Triumphant" in honor of the French Republic and produced for the first time at the Palaise de l'Industrie in connection with the Paris Exposition. It cost $60,000 to cover the expenses of scenery, decorations, costumes and stage mounting, but the composition won the prize, Mme. Holmes being the author of the words as well as the music. It was pronounced a wonderful combination of allegory, pantomime, vocal and orchestral music, and the gifted writer has been invited to contribute a similar original work for the American Exposition.

One of the most extensive efforts in the line of servant girl reform is likely to be set on foot in connection with the World's Fair, to be held in Chicago in 1893. The movement embraces an organization of a national body with branches in every state and county throughout the country. Mrs. John Lucas, who is the head of the woman's committee of the World's Fair in Illinois, is one of the prime movers in the new organization, and she is now devising plans with a view of having it brought prominently before the women of the United States through their representatives from the various states when assembled in Chicago during the progress of the exposition. The movement proposes the organization of training schools for servants in all the large cities wherever practicable. These diplomas will be similar to the diplomas issued by the training school for nurses, and will be a guarantee to employes that the holders are skillful domestics.

Just at this time, when an effort is making to raise subscriptions for the preservation of the Hermitage, "Old Hickory's" homestead, the discovery of some humble relics of the battle of Calebee, which General Jackson fought with the Indians during the Creek war, is of more than usual interest. J. C. Shauffer, who is employed on the Western Alabama Railroad, has found near Shorter's Station what are supposed to be the graves of chiefs who fell on the battlefield. The graves had been exposed by a freshet. Among their contents, lying with the bones of the red men, were ear-rings, beads, pipes, bullets, and a pair of rusted scissors. The bullets undoubtedly had fallen away from the bones of the dead, and it is supposed that the manufactured articles were obtained in barter with traders. The last survivor of the battle of Calebee, the Rev. John Dennis, died a few years since, at the age of ninety-four, in Dallas county, Ala. He was a native of Georgia, and a member of the command of Floyd, one of Jackson's lieutenants. Dennis was shot through the right arm during the engagement, and drew a pension from the Government up to the time of his death.

A Woman's Temple.

Unconsciously a woman builds
A temple in this world below,
And day by day a stone is laid
Of little things that come and go.
So it doth slowly rise above
The tide of years, until its dome
Has reached the glory clouds of heaven,
A world within itself, a home—
She wisely builds upon the rock,
Far more eternal than the years,
The pavement is of solid truth,
Untouched, unworn by falling tears.

The walls are innocence and grace,
Fair virtue makes them high and strong,
Within they shine with purity,
Resound with muse and sacred song;
The gates are pearls of truth and love,
Whence issue forth bright gleams of light,
Each stone a little sacrifice,
And kept in place by truth and right.
The pillars are of gentle acts,
That bear the weight of golden beams
Of life, and bound by cords of love,
And braced by faith's undying streams.

Each nail a heart-beat set in place,
Each blow her very centre shook;
The steps are trials, stepping stones
Where patience climbs with upward look,
The throne, her grand eternal soul,
Her king, the one she loves best;
The altar where sweet incense rise,
Does hold her greatest and her best.
So day by day a stone is laid,
Until the white-capped dome
Is hid among the clouds,
And she has reached her heavenly home.

HIS UNLUCKY PLANET.

BY CLARA GREEN.

"Oh, Yes, I know it's all my own fault," Charley Cleve said. "Whose else should it be? But I m disinherited, all the same. I've no more chance of coming into that fertile farm land than—than yonder Italian organ-grinder, who is turning the crank so peseveringly under deaf Squire Homer's back kitchen window."

"Oh, Charley," said Bess, clasping her hands dispairingly together.

"I didn't expect much else," went on Mr. Cleve, in a rollick ing, light hearted sort of way. "I was born under an unlucky star, Saturn, or Mars, or some one of those planets that never bring a fellow any good. You can't expect a star to reverse its order on my account, can you?"

"But, Charley—"

"Just wait until you hear the full account of my atrocities. I wasn't so much to blame for treading on the cat—any one might have done that. I don't think she laid that up against me. And when I broke down the old cherry wood chair that had belonged to her grandfather—that was a mere question of weight. And I mended it for her, too. But when the broiled ham for breakfast had such a queer taste to it—and I had to confess that I had been smoking up the chimney where it hung—"

"Oh, Charley!"

"How was I to know that she made a storehouse of the back-room chimney? Folks in Philadelphia don't do that sort of thing. And she wouldn't tolerate tobacco in any shape—she let me know that, at the very outset! The next thing I did was to upset her whole churning of cream. It hung half way down the well, don't you see, and when I came home, famished with thirst, and jerked the bucket down—well, the first thing I heard was Cousin Sarepta screaming like mad. 'Is it burglars?' said I, seizing my blackthorn stick, 'or is it fire?' And I had plunged into the house, and put my foot—literally, not metaphorically—into the old lady's baking of custard pies, that she had set on the cellar floor to cool, before she could make me understand. But the last straw that broke the camel's back was the old gray goose."

"'The old gray goose,' Charley! Surely, nothing has happened to that!"

Mr. Cleve shook his head.

"The very worst has happened," said he, "I've shot it!"

"On, Charley!"

The young man laughed bitterly, and spouted the lines:

"'Why look'st thou so? With my cross-bow
I shot the albatross!'

Yes, I did. Out wild-duck hunting in the marshes. I thought it was rather a mammoth specimen, when I leveled the trigger; and when Don brought it to me my heart sank to the very soles of my boots. I had half an idea of burying the creature out among the salt grasses, and saying never a word. But that would have been a sneaking sort of a dodge. The Cleves can do plenty of shabby things, but they never lie outright. So I brought it home with the string of wild birds. 'I'm very sorry, Cousin Sarepta,' said I, 'but I've shot your old goose. I'll replace it with the finest pair to be had in Salt Inlet.' 'Replace it!' says she; and then, to be sure, there was a scene. She set a good deal of store by that old gray goose, you know."

"Yes, I know," said Bessie, resignedly. "It was nearly twenty years old. She raised it herself, in a basket by the kitchen-fire, and it ate corn daily out of her own hand. She wouldn't have taken twenty dollars for that old goose. No, nor fifty, I do believe."

"So," added Charley, with a particularly expressive shrug of the shoulders, "she has turned me out of doors. She called me a loafer and a shiftless ne'er-do-weel, and I dare say she was right. I couldn't contradict her, so I didn't try. She recommended me to go about my business; so I did. And here I am. I've telegraphed to Philadelphia for the taxidermist. That was all I could do. Do you suppose, Bess, your father would take me to board for eight days? I've just eight days left of my vacation, and there'll be such a lot of questions asked if I came home in advance of time. I wouldn't advise you to have a word to say to me. I dare say I shall set fire to the house, or poison the family, or shoot somebody by mistake. What can be expected of a fellow that was born under an unlucky planet?"

Bess Warden laughed cheerily.

"Father will risk it, I am sure," said she. "We haven't a great deal of spare room, but mother will make you up a cot-bed in the room with the boys, and if you can put up with our plain way of living—"

He stopped her mouth with a kiss.

"You are an angel, Bess!" said he.

The kindly Warden family did their best to console old Miss Sarepta Smith's discarded relation, and to make the last portion of his vacation a trifle pleasanter than the first had been. But Doctor Warden shook his frost-white head.

"I don't like long engagements," said he. "And Bess can't marry a man on any twelve dollars a week."

"But, father, Charley will do better in time."

"If it pleases the unlucky planet," interpolated Charley.

"Well, wait until the better times come."

"Oh, we don't mind waiting!" cried Bess.

"Speak for yourself, if you please," murmured Charley.

"We've a lifetime before us," asseverated Bess; "and, in the meantime, Charley, we'll go out duck shooting tomorrow, and I'll row you through the Silver Channels to the best ground on all the coast."

On the night before Mr. Cleve's time was up, the lovers, talking to each other late in the autumnal starstarlight on the porch, saw a red glow in the sky above the privet hedge.

"It's a bonfire," said Charley.

"It's Miss Sarepta Smith's house!" shrieked Bess. "Help! Help! Fire! Water! Oh, why don't somebody come!"

"Call your father and the boys!" said Charley, flinging off his coat. "I'll jump the fence and take the short cut. She's all alone in the house, poor thing."

At Salt Inlet they had neither steam fire engines nor patent extinguishers. By the time the volunteer company had dragged the rickety old engine and hose-cart out of their shed, and hoisted them up the hill, the ancient house where Sarepta Smith had been born was in ruins; and the old woman herself, carried in a big chair over to the Warden house, was lamenting that she, too, had not gone also.

"Seems like I coul'n't live nowhere else," said she. "And I'm an old woman—a very old woman."

Bess Warden gave up her own room to Miss Sarepa. Every one did what he could to make her comfortable, but the only sign she evinced of pleasure was when Charlie Cleve brought in the old gray goose, stiffly mounted on an imitation of mossy ground. Her dim eyes lighted up.

"I am glad you saved that, Charles," said she.

"I found it among a heap of other things," said Charley, "and I thought you'd like to have it. See, here are your spectacles, too, and the old Bible, with the leaves all right, and the cover only a little charred!"

Miss Sarepta looked feebly from one relic to another.

"I'm glad," said she, "very glad. It was thoughtful of you, Charles. I'm sorry I called you them names. I take 'em all back."

"Oh, never mind the names," said Charley. "At all events, you can't lay this fire to me!"

"No," said Sarepta, "it was the mice playin' on the closet shelf where I kept the matches. I'd laid up to set a trap, but I forgot. And I should ha' been burned in my bed, if it hadn't been for you, Charles. I allays dreaded a death by fire!"

Old Miss Sarepta lay very quietly for a day or two, with the gray goose folding its wings at her bed head, and the Bible and spectacles on a stand beside her pillow.

"Charles shall have the gray goose," said she, one evening. "It'll help furnish his house. And it'll show I don't bear no malice on account of his shootin' it. And the specks and the Bible Bess must keep. An old Bible brings every one luck!"

She died before daybreak. If there was any will—and Miss Sarepta was always believed to be a well-to-do, businesslike woman—it was destroyed in the flames. The old place—three-and-forty acres—went to a cousin nearer of kin than Charley Cleve.

"My unlucky planet again," said Charley, with a grimace. "Well, never mind, Bess; it's only waiting a little longer. We've a Bible and a pair of spectacles, after all."

"And a stuffed gray goose," said Bess.

"Oh, hang the goose!" said Charley. "It's neither useful nor ornamental. Let's shy it out into the orchard," and he seized it by one leg.

"Oh, stop, Charley!" cried thrifty Bess. "Let's save the feathers for a pillow."

"They're full of arsenic and such stuff."

"All the better for keeping out moths," retorted Bess. "I'll pack them into a bag, and— Oh, Charlie, what is this?"

A piece of the old gray goose's epidermis had come off with the first handful of feathers. Underneath it was something like dull-green paper, packed in layers.

"Hello!" said Charley. "Why—they're bills! They're—money! Look here! Am I dreaming?"

It was true. The old gray goose was stuffed full of new crisp greenbacks. Sarepta Smith's eccentricities had not ceased with her death. There had been method in her words when she gave Charley Cleve this memorial of his own blunder, as a peace offering.

"Five hundred dollars!" said he. "I say, Bess, isn't it almost enough to get married upon? We'll do it very quietly, you know."

"Don't talk nonsense, Charley."

"But look in the old Bible, Bess. Who knows what may be hidden there?"

Nothing was hidden there. Apparently Miss Sarepta had confined her savings bank idea to the old gray goose.

Charley Cleve considered deeply.

"Five hundred dollars won't go very far in the city," said he; "and in the Trust Company, where I'm clerking it, a fellow may grub away for 20 years without any chance of promotion. I'll cut city life, Bess, if you say so, and invest this money in the first payment on a little fruit farm out here at Salt Inlet."

Bess's face lighted up.

"Close to my old home!" she cried. "Oh, Charley, I do say so!"

And 10 years after their wedding-day, when the great railway vein had throbbed through their land, and the "little fruit farm" was cut up into village lots, the thriving young farmer looked at his wife with a smile.

"It all comes of the old gray goose, Bess," said he.

"The unlucky planet was a lucky one after all," laughed Bess.—[The Ledger.

What Blue Eyes Mean.

"What remarkably blue eyes you have!"

The remark was addressed by a Washington Star writer to an ex-officer in the regular army, whose life has contained more than an ordinary share of ventures and vicissitudes.

"That is what they call in England the 'Wimbledon eye,'" was his reply, "because it is meant to shoot with. Scientific riflemen will tell you that there is no such eye for marksmanship as the blue one of the color which has excited your attention. Black eyes and brown eyes aren't in it with the blue anyway, when it comes to shooting or fighting. That is why the Northern people have always wiped the Southern races out when it came to war. You will see the fact illustrated perhaps when we come to blows with Chili.

"Did you ever look into the eyes of a person who was really engaged? I did once, and they were my own. Their expression was so horrible that I have never forgotten it. I am very slow to anger, but on the occasion I refer to I had cause, as I think you will admit. My adversary had not only insulted me in the grossest possible manner, but he had fired four shots at me.

"I had a gun myself, but I didn't stop to draw it. The only thing I thought of was to get at the man. I jumped upon him like a wildcat. He was quite my equal in strength, but I was mad with fury and could have thrashed two of him at that moment. Besides, I was a practical boxer. However, my powers with my fists were not called into requisition; we were at too close quarters for that.

"As I sprang upon him he fell against a mirror which was behind him and I caught a glimpse over his shoulder of my own eyes as we went down together. They actually had a diabolical expression, and, as I said, the recollection has haunted me ever since. They meant kill. In an instant I had wrenched the smoking revolver out of my enemy's hand, and with the first blow of its but I smashed in the crown of his hat. Incidentally his head was crushed in also. If he had not carried so very large a pistol the result would not have been so disastrous for himself, but it was a heave cavalry weapon, with a brass ring in the end, and he nearly died in consequence."

When the ambitious young man goes forth to seek his level he begins right off to look for a ladder.

AT HOME AND ABROAD.

Interesting Late Dispatches by Telegraph and Cable.

A Villain Makes a Mother Kill Her Own Son.

One of the most dramatic tragedies ever witnessed in real life has just been enacted at the village of El Rito, New Mexico. Roderigo Martinez was stabbed to the heart by his mother, who, on realizing what she had done, cut her own throat. The chain of events which led to this tragic denouement seems more like the creation of an imaginative novelist than the facts which they unfortunately are.

The villian in this drama of real life was George Hallston, who fell in love with a beautiful young woman who was betrothed to Roderigo Martinez. While pretending to be the friend of Roderigo he secretly made love to the girl. She refused to listen to Hallston's protests of love.

Martinez having left home on a visit, Hallston told his mother that he had been assassinated in Mexico. He then wrote to Martinez that his sweetheart was married and his mother dead, thinking by these means to keep the young man away and leave the coast clear for him to renew the wooing of the young woman.

Martinez, however, returned to find that his sweetheart was unmarried and his mother alive. Frustrated in his first plan, Hallston then pursuaded Martinez to give his mother a surprise by visiting her in disguise. Meanwhile he ran to the mother's house and told her he would bring the slayer of her son to her in a few minutes, and she should kill the rascal.

When Roderigo entered the enraged old woman stabbed him to the heart. A moment later she found her mistake, and raving mad, she cut her throat.

The betrothed sprang at Hallston with a dagger, intending to avenge the deaths of her lover and his mother, but he darted away and escaped.

Wife Murderer Executed.

Charles Wall was executed at Tunkhannock, Penn., for the murder of his wife. The drop fell at 10:05 in the morning.

Charles Wall murdered his wife Julia with an axe on July 25, 1891. They lived in Centre-Moreland Township, and had been married only two months. Wall was jealous and quarreled with his wife, alleging undue intimacy on her part with Butler Wall, his nephew. Wall went to town, and his wife, not expecting him home, went to a neighbor's to pass the night.

Wall returned during the night intoxicated, and not finding his wife smashed all the furniture and dishes in the house. He then went to the house of John Smith, where his wife was in bed with her sister, and attempted to cut her throat with a knife, but only succeeded in wounding her slightly. Mrs. Smith and her daughter also received slight cuts.

Mrs. Wall then went home. Wall soon followed, securing an axe on the way. Mrs. Wall saw him coming, and fearing he would do her harm, ran out of the house and started to cross a lot. She had gone only a short distance when she fell, and Wall, who was following her, ran up and drove the axe into her head. He struck her the second time and left her lying dead. Wall was arrested and confessed the crime. When he came up for trial on November 9, he entered a plea of not guilty on account of insanity. He was convicted, however, and sentenced to be hanged.

The Mafia Lynching Cases.

Suits for damages growing out of the Hennessy assassination and the lynching of the Italians that followed have been filed in the United States courts against the city of New Orleans, La. They are brought by the families of the Italian prisoners who were not naturalized.

The claims will vary from $30,000 to $40,000, and the total will amount to between $150,000 and $200,000. The heirs of the mobbed Italians have filed a claim against the Government, but it is said that it will be worthless unless suit is brought against the city within one year after the occurrence.

Wedding Guests Murdered.

A despatch from Kolaschin, a town on the frontier of Albania, reports that one of forty Albanians who were escorting a wedding procession accidentally shot a Montenegrin while firing a salute to the bride.

Though it was clearly apparent that the shooting was entirely accidental the comrades of the wounded men poured a volley into the wedding party, killing and wounding nineteen of them. The Montenegrin party was building a bridge.

A Conscience Contribution.

Postmaster-General Wanamaker has received a conscience contribution of $1500 in a letter postmarked New York, March 4. The bills were mostly of the $100 denomination, and had been cut in halves. The letter was as follows: "Enclosed please find half bills which will match those this day sent to the Secretary of the Treasury. This payment is interest on moneys restored to the Government heretofore, and which I defrauded it out of years ago."

Father and Daughter Perish.

A frame farmhouse near Kelly's Station, N. Y., was destroyed by fire about 2 o'clock the other morning. John Landers, aged eighty years, and his unmarried daughter Annie, aged thirty-five, perished in the flames. One of the neighbors who had been aroused by the fire looked in a window and saw the old man lying unconscious on the floor. The upper floor and roof fell in, preventing a rescue.

Milch Cows for the Indians.

The Commissioner of Indian Affairs awarded contracts for supplying the Indians of the Northwestern tribes with milch cows and bulls. He bought 2200 cows at prices ranging from $18.69 per head to $33.98 and 400 bulls at from $26.28 to $33.85 each. The aggregate of the contracts was $250,000.

RIOT IN DANTZIC.

Systematic Distribution of Food by the Mob to Starving Workmen.

A mass meeting of two thousand or more of unemployed workmen sent a deputation to the Chief Magistrate of Dantzic, Germany, to ask for work and food for their starving families.

The magistrate received them kindly and advised them to maintain the peace. He said that arrangements had been made to employ about two hundred men on relief works near the city. This did not satisfy the delegation, and when the steamboat departed with the 200 who had been promised work, the hungry mob left behind, encouraged by Socialist and Anarchist warriors, began to sack the bread shops and other places where food of any kind was for sale or stored.

The police were overpowered by the mob. Large piles of meat, bread and groceries were heaped in the streets and guarded by a detail of the rioters, while the hungry workingmen, one by one, were dealt out provisions in accordance with their needs or the size of their families. Skirmishing parties of the rioters meanwhile kept the police at bay, severely injuring several of them.

Late in the day, when the rioters had obtained all they wanted, they dispersed, several bodies being hastened homeward by the police, who had rallied in stronger force. About fifty arrests were made.

J. A. TORIAN, once a wealthy planter of Horn Lake, Miss., went to Memphis, Tenn., to get supplies for the coming year. The low price of cotton caused all merchants and bankers to refuse him credit, and, smarting under the humiliation, he killed himself.

THE report of the State Superintendent shows that the fire and marine insurance companies in New York did business last year at a loss of $1,500,000.

WORLD'S FAIR NOTES.

AUSTRIA will make a fine exhibit of glass, porcelain, bronze, leather, artistic iron and cabinet work.

THE grand entrance to the mammoth Manufactures Building will be decorated at an expense of about $12,000.

A HEROIC statute of Columbus, by Louis St. Gaudens, will stand before the main entrance of the Administration Building.

THE exhibit which Illinois women will make in the Woman's Building will be a model hospital, conducted entirely by women.

HAYTI has appropriated $25,000 for its representation at the Exposition. Fred Douglas has been appointed commissioner to represent that country.

MRS. FRONA WAIT, one of the lady managers of California, has offered to finish in redwood one of the large reception rooms in the Woman's Building.

THE "Independent New York Schuetzen," considered the elite corps of German-American sharpshooters, have decided to attend the Exposition in a body.

THE total amount reported appropriated by foreign nations and colonies for their representation at the Exposition, so far as heard from, is $3,951,053. Quite a number of those which have decided to participate have not yet made appropriations.

E. SEYDERHEIM, horticulturist to the Emperor of Austria, has written from Buda-Pesth that he will contribute to the Exposition's floral display a collection of the rarest roses, embracing 200 standard, 200 half-standard tree roses and 400 rose bushes.

A CABLEGRAM states that Switzerland will not be officially represented at the Exposition, but that the Government will examine the representations of citizens desirous of exhibiting and will consider the question of granting a subsidy to enable them to do so.

THE Illinois State Board of Agriculture has offered a number of prizes, ranging from $50 to $250, for the best exhibits shown at the State Fair, to be held at Peoria, in September. From these exhibits the Board will make many selections for the World's Fair.

A CHORAL HALL, 160x260 feet, will be erected near the Horticultural Building. There Professor Tomlins, with 3000 trained voices, will furnish rare choral music during the Exposition. The Welsh International Eisteddfod will occupy the building for a week.

M. SERANNO, Mexico's special World's Fair Commissioner, who visited Chicago a short time ago and made a thorough inspection of Exposition progress and affairs, has made to his Government a report exceedingly favorable to the Exposition. He advocates an elaborate participation by Mexico.

THE Newport (R. I.) Artillery, which celebrated its 150th anniversary several months ago, and claims to be the oldest active military company in the United States, will attend the World's Fair. It visited the Centennial at Philadelphia and attracted much attention.

JACKSON PARK will retain as one of its permanent attractions the building which Japan will erect for its headquarters at the Exposition. The building will be modeled after one of the most famous and architecturally unique of Japan's ancient temples, and with its surrounding garden will cost $70,000. About 40,000 square feet will be occupied.

THE Russian Government has adopted a very liberal policy toward the Exposition. Information has been received at headquarters that the Minister of Finance, with the approval of the Emperor, has decided to pay all freight charges on Russian exhibits for the Fair, to insure the exhibits and to decorate the Russian section. The imperial porcelain factory is making ware of special designs to be shown at the Fair.

THE Bethlehem Iron Company, of South Bethlehem, Penn., will make an extensive exhibit, including steel rails, a battle-ship shafting 125 feet in length, guns, projectiles, an armor-plate ingot weighing 100 tons, and various naval appliances. The company will also erect a full-size model of its famous 125-ton steam hammer, said to be the largest in the world. It will span the main avenue of Machinery Hall, and will rise to a height of ninety feet.

A HANGMAN RESIGNS.

Berry, the Notorious British Jack Ketch, Resents Interference.

Berry, the British hangman of world-wide reputation, has resigned because he was ordered by a prison doctor to change the length of the drop. Berry maintained that his long experience was worth more than all the doctor's theory, and would not obey the order. When informed that he must change the length of the drop or resign he promptly resigned. He says he will travel in the United States and Great Britain, and give lectures in all the large cities on criminals and their last hours as he has observed them in his many years' experience.

With regard to his professional career there are two points on which Berry especially prides himself. These are, the having secured the abolition of the steps that formerly led to the scaffold, and which he claims inflicted unnecessary sufferings upon criminals, and the addition of a spring to prevent the rebounding of the flaps of the scaffold.

Personally, Berry is a strong opponent of capital punishment, and expresses the hope that he may live to see it abolished.

FIFTY-SECOND CONGRESS.

In the Senate.

46TH DAY.—The Vice-President presented a communication from the Secretary of the Interior in relation to the Yosemite Park ——The Paddock Pure Food bill was discussed——Mr. Gordon offered a resolution for the payment to the estate of Alexander H. Stephens, of Georgia, of the expenses incurred by him in prosecuting his claim to a seat in the Senate (in the reconstruction period). Referred to the Committee on Contingent Expenses——House bill to constitute Newark, N. J., a port of immediate transportation was passed——The District of Columbia Appropriation bill was referred——Eulogies were delivered by Messrs. Barbour, Pasco, Stewart, Colquitt, Butler, Dolph and Daniel in memory of W. H. F. Lee, a late Representative from Virginia.

47TH DAY.—The Paddock Pure Food bill was discussed——Mr. Sawyer introduced a bill to authorize the establishment of a postal telegraph service.

48TH DAY.—The calendar was taken up, and bills were acted on as follows: Joint resolution to provide for an international bimetallic agreement. Laid aside without action. To pay to the estate of John Ericsson $13,930, balance found due by the Court of Claims for Captain Ericsson's services in planning the Princeton and her machinery. Passed. Appropriating $275,000 for the construction of two United States revenue cutters for service on the great lakes. Passed. Fixing at $19 a month the pay of enlisted men acting as army nurses. Passed. All the bills that were passed—thirty in number—were Senate bills. The time occupied in passing them was exactly one hour—— At 4:25, when a message from the House announcing the death of Mr. Kendall was presented, Mr. Blackburn offered the usual resolutions of respect and condolence, which were agreed to, and the Vice-President appointed Messrs. Pasco, Hansbrough, Chilton, Warren and Gibson, of Maryland, to represent the Senate at the funeral. As a further mark of respect, the Senate at 4:30 adjourned.

49TH DAY.—The Paddock Pure Food bill passed without a division being called for——Senate bill appropriating $187,039 to compensate the Indians of the Crow Creek Reservation was passed——Mr. Hale reported back without amendment the Agricultural Deficiency bill——The Senate joint resolution to pay West Virginia her share of the direct tax refund was taken up and discussed.

50TH DAY.—The Agricultural Deficiency bill was passed——Mr. Washburne introduced a bill to regulate immigration, providing for a Commissioner in Europe and twelve inspectors, one to be stationed at each of twelve European ports——The bill to provide for the erection of public buildings for postoffices in towns and cities where the postoffice receipts for three years preceding have exceeded $3000 annually was taken up and discussed.

In the House.

50TH DAY—Mr. Sayers reported the Urgent Deficiency bill. It aggregates $435,413——The Pension Appropriation bill was reported——The House then went into Committee of the Whole (Mr. Hatch, of Missouri, in the chair) on the private calendar. The afternoon was consumed in the consideration of private bills——The second night session for the consideration of private pension bills proved no more successful than the first. Only eighty-seven members responded to their names, and, after a roll call, the House adjourned.

51ST DAY.—Mr. Enloe introduced a resolution for the protection of Government employes who testify before committees of Congress——The bill appropriating $150,000, from the Committee on Agriculture, for carrying out the provisions of the Meat Inspection law, and $10,000 for sugar experiments, gave rise to considerable discussion——The Urgency Deficiency bill, appropriating $438,000 for certain expenditures, $350,000 of which was for public printing, paper and binding, was passed.

52D DAY.—Mr. Catchings moved, before the reading of the Journal, that the report from the Committee on Rules for the consideration of the Silver bill on March 22 be taken up, which motion the Chair held to be in order. To this Mr. Tracey objected. He appealed from the decision of the Chair. The appeal was laid on the table by a yea and nay vote of 202 to seventy. The anti-silver men consumed most of the day in filibustering against the motion to adopt the report of the committee, and the final vote did not occur until 5 o'clock, when the resolution was passed—190 to eighty-four——The Invalid Pension Appropriation bill was then passed, and the House adjourned.

53D DAY.—After a short sitting, an adjournment was taken out of respect to the late Representative Kendall, of Kentucky. The Speaker appointed the following committee to take order respecting the funeral ceremonies: Messrs. Paynter, Mansur, Amerman, Bailey, Owens, Wilson (Ky.), and Belknap.

54TH DAY.—On motion of Mr. McMillin the House went into Committee of the Whole upon revenue bills, Mr. Blount (Ga.) being designated as the presiding officer. Mr. McMillin addressed the House on the tariff question, favoring the free wool clause. He was followed by Mr. Dingley, who spoke in opposition to it.

55TH DAY.—Mr. Herbert reported the Naval Appropriation bill——Mr. Pearson offered and the House passed a resolution providing an annual clerk for the Committee on Accounts——The following reports were made: Mr. Outhwaite to establish a military post at or near Helena, Montana; Mr. Crosby to classify and prescribe salaries of railway postal clerks; Mr. Tillman to protect foreign exhibitors at the World's Fair against prosecution under United States postal laws——The debate on the Free Wool bill was continued.

THE WOOLEN TRADE.

Official Statistics Showing the Number of Factories.

Official woolen statistics for the United States have just been given out from Washington. The number of establishments reported for 1890 as engaged in the manufacture of woolen goods proper, when compared with the number reported for 1880, shows a decrease of 678. The number reported in 1880 for this branch of the industry showed a decrease of 901 establishments from the number reported in 1870.

A comparative statement of all branches of wool manufacture, except shoddy, is given as follows:

Number of establishments reported in 1890, 2503; in 1880, 2689.

Capital invested, 1890, $314,309,944; 1880, $159,091,869.

Number of hands employed, 1890, 221,032; 1880, 161,557.

Wages paid, 1890, $76,741,266; 1880, $47,339,087.

Miscellaneous expenses, 1890, $19,547,300; 1880, blank; no census taken.

Cost of materials used, 1890, $203,095,642; 1880, $164,371,551.

Value at factory of goods manufactured, 1890, $338,231,109; 1880, $267,352,913.

This statement does not include 271 idle establishments reporting invested capital amounting to $6,133,860

ATTACK ON THE CZARINA.

A Deadly Bomb Thrown at Her Carriage in St. Petersburg.

While the Czarina and Czarovitch were out driving on the Vavsky prospect, St. Petersburg, Russia, a tall man, with a dark moustache and wearing a loose overcoat, ran out from the crowd and threw a parcel at the the carriage.

He evidently intended that it should fall inside the window, but it dropped to the ground several feet from the rear wheels.

The Czarina saw the man take something from under his coat. She turned white, half rose from her seat and then sank back on her son's shoulder.

The coachman drove on with all speed, shouting to the police on the drive and pointing toward the man, who hurried off through the crowd.

The bundle consisted of a metal receptacle containing an explosive fluid and covered with loose black cloth.

LATER NEWS.

THREE miners were killed and two others fatally injured by an explosion of gas in the Alden mine at Wilkesbarre, Penn.

A BLAZING volcano has been discovered in the New River region of the Colorado Desert.

THE President has nominated Judson C. Clements, of Georgia, to be an Interstate Commerce Commissioner, vice Walter L. Bragg, dead, and William Lindsay, declined. Mr. Clements was born in Walker County, Ga., on February 12, 1846.

PRESIDENT HARRISON sent to Congress the correspondence in the Bering Sea matter which has accumulated since the date of the last publication, January 5, 1891, and some notes of previous dates which have not hitherto been made public.

QUEEN VICTORIA, of England, has received the painting by Frank B. Carpenter, the American artist, of the Alabama Arbitration Commission, and has had it hung in the banqueting Hall of Windsor Castle. The donor was Mrs. Carson, of Newburg, N. Y.

AMOS C. THOMAS, a wealthy miller of Mexico, was found suspended from the roof of his barn dead. A handkerchief saturated with chloroform was tied about his mouth and nose. He had been drinking heavily of late, and this is attributed as the cause of his suicide.

GOVERNOR FLOWER signed the two companion bills which permit the Union Elevated Railway Company, of Brooklyn, to build two gigantic bridges over the East River from Brooklyn to New York, and then to construct from the common terminus of the bridges in New York an elevated railroad, three miles in length, connecting the bridges with the elevated railroad lines in New York.

THE annual report of the State Board of Health for last year was given to the press. The annual death rate last year was 21.41 per 1000 of population, as compared with 19.65 per 1000 of population in 1890.

WHILE a Swede, aged about thirty-two years, known as Peter, was examining a new machine placed in the Terra Cotta Works, near Woodbridge, N. J., he was instantly beheaded. He did not hear the warning given him but five minutes before to look out.

JOHN F. WINSLOW died at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., aged eighty-one. He introduced the manufacture of Bessemer steel into this country, and was prominently connected with the building of the Monitor.

FIRST CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICT CONVENTION.

A Convention of the Republicans of the First Congressional District of North Carolina is hereby called to convene at Elizabeth City, N. C., on Thursday, the 5th of May, 1892, at 3 o'clock p. m. for the purpose of electing two delegates and alternates to the National Republican Convention at Minneapolis on the 7th of June 1892, and transacting such other business as may be deemed expedient.

GEO. W. COBB, Chairman.
GEO. E. BUCKMAN, Sec'y.

FRUITS OF REPUBLICAN PROTECTION AND RECIPROCITY.

In 1890, during the eleven months ending November 30, the exports of canned fruit from the United States amounted in value to $980,469. In 1891, under Republican protection, during the corresponding period, our exports of canned fruit amounted in value to $1,367,737.

In 1890, during the month of November, the exports of agricultural implements from the United States to Cuba amounted in value to $1,329. In 1891, under Republican reciprocity, during the corresponding month, our exports of such articles to that country amounted in value to $6,482.

A TARIFF PICTURE.

The New York Press calls attention to the fact that the year before last we bought foreign woolen cloths to the value of $14,695,955, and that last year, under the McKinley tariff, we bought of these goods only $11,489,972. Recently the Press showed that the present tariff had in one year put about 9,000,000 in the pockets of American producers of wool and woolens in the matter of women and children's dress goods. It has made an additional home market for over $3,000,000 worth of American woolen cloths in the same time.

MONEY-ORDER FACILITIES.

An order recently issued by Postmaster General Wanamaker gives money order facilities to all post-offices where the compensation of the postmaster reaches $200 per annum. This order will result in a very considerable extension of the existing money-order facilities of the country. It is expected that 1,500 money-order offices will be established throughout the country by April 1, and that 3,000 will be established by July 1; and that during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1893, from 5,000 to 6,000 additional money-order offices will be established.

The Democrats can only secure a repeal of the McKinley Tariff law by an appeal to the people. Such is the effect of the recent Supreme Court decision as to its constitutionality.

No wonder David B. Hill wanted to come South after he heard the election returns from New York towns. A man whose own city repudiates him doesn't feel like singing "Home, sweet home."

The CAROLINIAN hopes it will not be taken unkindly if it suggests that certain of its free trade cotemporaries do not know as much about the Constitution of the United States as they thought they did.

Few people are aware that Mr Spurgeon, the great English Baptist preacher was never ordained. He began and ended his remarkable ministry as a lay preacher.

The best thing about Congressman Bland is the efact that he doesn't know how useful he is to the Republican party.

Rev. Dr. Bailey, the veteran editor of the Biblical Recorder, at Raleigh, has had a severe attack of paralyses.

Thomas B. Reed is no longer Speaker of the House, but he speaks frequently and always very much to the point.

Three months of the present Congress gone and nothing done!

Everything Democratic these days seems to be down Hill.

Our lumber mills turn out over $500,000,000 worth of lumber every year, and over 50 per cent of the cost of that represents labor. Yet this free-trade Congress proposes to place lumber on the free trade list, thus transferring to Canada and British Columbia much of the trade. The Lumbermen's Convention recently held at Washington adopted resolutions protesting against such a step.

This is the way the Democratic Buffalo (N. Y.) Enquirer speaks of Mr. Hill:

"You have carried things with too high a hand, Senator. Republicans who would not come out to vote last fall and democrats who once supported you for the party's sake are now so worked up that they crowd about the polls at sunrise whenever there is an opportunity to turn down you or yours

"Cleveland or collapse,' shrieks the New York Evening Post to the Democratic party. As Cleveland is now only a stuffed reminescence there is no reason why the Democracy shall not collapse.

Several of our Democratic cotemporaries come to the front at last as advocates of reciprocity. They are late in their conversion, but

While the lamp holds out to burn,
The vilest sinner may return

Congressman Harter, a Democrat from Ohio, has written an open letter to David B. Hill asking him if he favors free and fraudulent silver. He wants Mr Hill's views in writing. Hill hasn't made any reply.

Big Tom Reed, watching Democratic dilemmas under the rules and rulings of Speaker Crisp, is fairly entitled to shake like a reed with laughter.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

[From our Regular Correspondent.]

WASHINGTON, March 12, 1892.

The President seeks no war with Great Britain or any other power, but like the patriotic American that he is, he is determined that American rights shall be maintained, let the consequences be what they may. All of the correspondence up to date together with the recently signed arbitration treaty is before the Senate, which judging from opinions expressed by individuals is of about the same mind as the President, and it is not probable that the treaty will be ratified, unless Lord Salisbury on behalf of his government, shall agree to a renewal of the modus vivendi in Behrings Sea. Should he persist in refusing it is probable that the treaty will be rejected and a sufficient naval force sent to Behrings Sea to seize all illegal sealers, and if need be to fight any British vessels that may interfere. And that is not all. Canada may expect to find all the favors she now enjoys by courtesy of this government withdrawn. Lord Salisbury had better think twice before acting upon the last communication sent him. He certainly would if he knew how very popular a war with Great Britain would be in this country.

The opening of the tariff debate in the house was very tame compared with similar events in the Fiftieth and Fiftieth-first Congresses. The galleries were empty and not one half of the members were in their seats. Mr. McMillin made the opening speech, supposedly in favor of the free wool bill, but in reality a rambling defense of the alleged policy of the democrats so far as it relates to appropriations and the tariff. Mr. Dingley, of Maine, in his reply, easily demolished the free trade champion.

Representative Harter, of Ohio, is about the only man in Congress who expresses any doubt of the House passing the Bland free coinage bill by a majority anywhere from 30 to 75 when it is taken up under the resolution adopted Monday last. Mr. Harter believes, or professes to believe, that between now and the 22d inst he can convince enough democrats of the danger attending the passage of the free coinage bill to defeat it.

The democrats are getting seriously alarmed over the outlook for their party in the next House of Representatives, which some of them acknowledge to be anything else but encouraging. In spite of their big majority in the present House they see defeat staring them in the face, in the next Congressional election. Representative McCreary, who wants to be chairman of the Congressional campaign committee, has obtained enough signatures to have a democratic caucus called for the purpose of naming the House members of that committee, and it will be issued at once.

Ex-Speaker Reed was given a grand reception on Tuesday evening by the National Republican Auxiliary Association, an organization composed of representatives from the various State Associations existing here, and a more enthusiastic crowd has never assembled in Washington. The ex-speaker responded to a congratulatory address delivered by Representative Burrows, of Michigan, in his best vein, not forgetting the shortcomings of the democratic majority in the present House, including their economizing by cutting down the appropriation for school books for the poor children in the District of Columbia public schools, and closing with: "Meanwhile the republican party, emerging from its temporary disaster, turns its shining face to the future, now as ever, the one hope of progress of the people of the United States."

Republican Prospects in the Northwest—Prohibition—The Alliance.

Governor A. C. Mellette, of South Dakota.

There is an increased loyalty to the Republican party in the Northwest and throughout the agricultural regions. This is largely due to the McKinley tariff. For the first time the farmer is protected to an extent to be appreciated. The McKinley schedule increases the tariff on farm products throughout from 25 to 100 per cent. Its effects are felt more particularly by the farmers than any other class. It has revived many industries which were languishing, and there never was, except during the war, so good a year for farmers as the last one has been. The sentiment of the Northwest has been revolutionized by it. For the first time the farm produce market is protected to supply the home manufacturers, and the intelligent agriculturis will hence be ardent supporters of protection, only demanding fair play on the schedule.

Free raw material is perhaps a popular doctrine in the manufacturing districts, but it will never be tolerated by our farmers. It pledges protection to the manufacturing products, but opens the markets of the world for their supply of material and food in the form the farmer places it in the market.

Prohibition is an element of unrest in politics in the Northwest, but more than for a long time it is a secondary issue and Republicans are Republicans first and Prohibitionists afterward. They have been led to this position largely by the famous Justice Fuller's original package decision, which practically wipes out police control of intoxicating liquors by the States. They realize fully that the decision could never have been promulgated except through a democratic Chief Justice, that he is the result of Cleveland's election, and that this was the result of the prohibitory movement.

The Farmers' Alliance movement is disintegrating, as it appears more and more that it is only an ally of the Democratic party. Its chief apostles in the Northwest are emissaries from the South. They preach a third party here and at home advocate reform through the old Democratic party. It is becoming too displeasing for our Republican farmers. They propose likewise to seek reform through the Republican party.

The Republicans will win easily this year and ought to win. The chances are far better than in 1888. The positive action of the 51st Congress pleases our people. It has all worked for the public welfare and disappointed Democratic prophecies.

Sawyer, A. L. Pendleton, J. Heywood Sawyer, Jno W. Albertson Jr, and W. G. Underwood, and having been duly recorded in the office of the Clerk of the Superior Court of the county of Pasquotank in the State of North Carolina and the tax of twenty-five dollars having been duly paid.

The business to be carried on by the said Corporation shall be the purchasing, erecting and operating an Electric Light plant in or near Elizabeth City; furnishing electric power for lights and other purposes; taking and holding real estate by grant, lease or otherwise as may be necessary for operating said plant and business; to contract to furnish lights for any corporation, individual or company, to acquire a franchise for operating said business, to make such other contracts as may be necessary in operating said business; to sue and be sued in its corporate name. The place of business shall be Elizabeth City, N. C, and the length of time to run thirty years. The amount of capital stock of said company shall not be less than ten thousand dollars in shares of one hundred dollars each, and such capital stock may be increased from time to time by a two-third vote of the total number of shares to a sum not exceeding one hundred thousand dollars.

It is especially agreed and understood between the parties to these articles that no stockholder is to be liable or held responsible for the conduct of fau't of the corporation in any further sum than the unpaid balance due the company on the share or shares owned by him.

The business of said corporation shall be conducted through a Board of Directors, composed of not less than seven nor more than nine of said stockholders, and the said Directors shall be elected by the stockholders annually. Now, therefore, by virtue of the statute in such cases made and provided, I John P. Overman, clerk of said Superior Court do now declare that the said D. B. Bradford and others, the incorporators mentioned above, and their successors be and they are hereby made a body corporate by the name and style of "The Electric Light Company of Elizabeth City," according to the terms and for the purposes set forth in said articles of agreement and with all the powers and authority conferred upon corporations by the laws of North Carolina and to extend thirty years from the date of incorporation.

Let this order be published in a newspaper published in Elizabeth City, N. C.

In testimony whereof I have hereunto set my hand and affixed my official seal this 26th day of January, 1892.

J. P. OVERMAN,
Clerk Superior Court

A GREAT SAVING FOR FARMERS!

We are now manufacturing STEAM GROUND OYSTER SHELL MEAL which is the cheapest and best article for corn, potatoes peanuts, cabbage, tobacco, etc. as the following testimonials will show:

Mr. Enoch Spates, of this county, says: "I got some of your steam gound shell meal for my cotton. I put it at the rate of four hundred pounds to the acre for a test. I planted a few rows and put my best horse stable manure and muck, and a few rows with $28 guano. The difference was but little, I could not tell unless I knew, but the oyster shell meal opened sooner and nicer. I shall use your steamed oyster shell meal hereafter; it is as good and will last longer, and I can get nearly 3 tons for one of the Phosphate or Guano."

Mr. J. F. Whitehead, also of this county, says; "I got some of your steam ground oyster shell meal to try on my land. I planted one barrel of Irish potatoes and my neighbor, Jesse Simpson, planted one side by side, on the same kind of soil. Mr. Simpson used horse stable manure and muck, and I used steam shell meal and to my surprise I got eleven barrels more from my barrel than Mr. Simpson did. So I will give you an order for 5 tons for your steamed ground shell meal."

Mr. J. N. Winslow, of Woodville, Perquimans county, says: "I tried some of your steam ground oyster shell meal on my crops this year and I found it the best thing I used yet. You will have my order before long for next crop."

Mr. J. J Cahoon, of Tyrrell county, says: "I have tried your steam ground oyster shell meal for my cotton this year. I left a space through the field where I used other fertilizers on each side I used the shell meal; where the shell was put is so much better that I will give ten dollars to any man that can't see the difference a mile off and it is cheaper and will last longer and open early."

Mr. F. N. Hussey, of Gum Neck, says "I have tried some of ground shell meal or lime on my corn and cotton and it proved far beyond my expectation."

PRICE ONLY $10 PER TON

We are also prepared to grind corn with the cob. Write or call on the undersigned at Elizabeth City, N. C.

Wednesday, March 16, 1892.

Pasquotank Court next week.

Some of the planted potatoes are rotting.

The reports from the Fisheries are more encouraging.

The early planted peas are showing up rich and green.

The citizens of Sound Neck are getting up a petition for a postoffice in that section.

Waters & Sons' Bottling works are now complete and in successful operation. The fixtures and machinery are all of the latest improvements, far superior to any in this section.

Farmers make complaint that the weather has been delaying them getting in their crops It may be and probably is all for the best. The cold weather now is better than to have it later.

The special attention of the Fishermen is called to the card of Willis H. Rogers in this week's CAROLINIAN. This strong and reliable house is represented here by Mr. Henry C. Rogers, so well and favorably known in all this section.

The election for Town Commissioners will be held on the 4th of April The voting places selected are: First ward, Smith's paint shop; Second ward, C. W. Overman's store; Third ward Court House; Fourth ward, Old Normal School house, and Fifth ward, F. F. Cahoon's store.

Foster, the St. Joseph weather prophet, predicted a severe blizzard about the 11th inst, and it came. It was severe and cold enough here, but no comparison to what it was in Dakota and Iowa, where a number of people and many animals perished.

H. M. Rogers & Co, of 11 Fulton Wholesale Fish Market, New York, renew their advertisement in this week's CAROLINIAN. It is a good, fair dealing and honorable firm. The house is represented here by Mr. John Sherman, whom the CAROLINIAN is authorized to say is a reliable gentleman.

The exercises at the rooms of the Y. M. C. A on Monday night were of more than usual interest. The subject debated was: "Has Women the right to Vote?" The opening speech was made by Rev. P W. Melick who made some strong points in favor of their voting. He was followed by Rev. Dr. Johnston, who pointed out some of the evils that would follow if that right was allowed our ladies. The Dr. is a strong reasoner and made some good points for the negative side. The third speaker of the evening was Mr. J P. Overman and he brought forward some unanswerable evidences of the right of the fair sex to vote. He spoke in high terms of the ladies and argued that their presence at the polls would tend to elevate and refine politics. The last speaker was Mr. N. E. Vowels, the "silver-tongued orator," who in beautiful language pictured woman in her home and the power she exercised, but claimed that she would lose that power if allowed to vote. The judges were Messrs Blades, Shipp and Fearing who decided in favor of the women voting. The meetings of the Literary Society are growing in interest as was evidenced by the large crowd present.

The leading society event of the season occurred on Thursday last, it being the marriage of Miss Loumattie Guirkin, daughter of Col, Charles Guirkin, postmaster and banker at this place, to Mr. Joseph T. McCabe, a prominent merchant on Water street. The ceremony took place at the Methodist Church and was performed by Rev. E. M Jordan, pastor, under a large horseshoe of white dasies, hung over the centre of an arch of ferns spanning the chancel, on either side of which were tastefully arranged palms, lilies, ferns and delicate plants. The bridal party, at 2 o'clock entered the church through a gate of flowers on the right and departed through another on the left, the organist playing a wedding march. The church was crowded to its utmost capacity. The bride was attired in a traveling dress of fawn color broadcloth elaborately trimmed in brocade velvet, with bouquet of white coronations, lilies of the valley and maiden hair fern; Miss Maggie Bell, maid of honor, light blue india silk, with white hyacinths; Miss Kate Pailin, light grey serge with trimmings of white faille, with LaFrance roses, escorted by Mr. W. G. Underwood; Miss Eva Burgess, light fawn color surah cloth, green silk Persian trimming, with LaFrance roses, escorted by Mr. Walter Bell; Miss Edith Roach, Hagerstown, Md, brown brocade, with Nile Green trimmings, La France roses, escorted by Mr. C. R Bell, Baltimore, Md; Messrs. C. F. Martin and F. M. Dexter, Ushers. The party left for a two week's tour to New York and other points North. The fair bride was the recipient of numerous presents, among them the following:

—French Prunes, French Peas and French Soup at Robinson & Co's.

The "Ram's Horn" says that religion that isn't used every day won't keep very long.

—Try Robinson & Co's California Dessert Fruit, also nice California Honey.

At the meeting of the District Republican Executive Committee on the 8th inst, it was decided to call the District Convention at Elizabeth City on Thursday, the 5th of May at 3 o'clock p. m. See the call in another column of this issue of the CAROLINIAN.

—Robinson & Co's is the place to get Bolted Snow Flour.

A New York fashion letter says "the spring bonnet will be still smaller—almost microscopic," whereupon a cotemporary remarks that husbands will groan in spirit at this, as the price of a bonnet is always in reverse ratio to its size.

—You can get Mocha and Java Coffee at Robinson & Co,

Special attention is called to the advertisement of "The Improvement Company of Elizabeth City," in this week's CAROLINIAN. The Company is composed of and officered by responsible and progressive men; the lots are eligibly located and valuable, and investments in them will be safe.

—Fowler & Co mean business ALL THE TIME and propose to merit your patronage.

The following, from a new subscriber, it to the point and is highly appreciated. The CAROLINIAN would be glad to have an occasional effusion from his rhymic pen.

I've read your paper, and I find
So much of interest to the mind
On every page that pleases me,
That a subscriber I will be
It gives the news from pole to pole,
From east to west, where billows roll,
'Mid artic snows, 'neath trophic sun,
It tells us all that has been done,
It's just the paper that I need—
A paper every one should read,

—A careful comparison is all that Fowler & Co ask of their goods and prices

A subscriber asks, "Why don't the CAROLINIAN speak out on the public road question?" It has done so, time and again. But under the present system of working them our public roads will never be made what they should be. The CAROLINIAN has urged and will continue to agitate a change in the system; when this is brought about better roads will follow.

—Don't forget Fowler & Co when you want to buy a Trunk. You will feel bad over it if you do.

—Robinson & Co. have just received a car of Yellow Seed Oats which they are now offering very low.

In reply to a query, the CAROLINIAN gives the provisions of the present treaty of extradition with Great Britain which are as follows: Article X of the treaty of 1842, which still continues in force, named murder, assault with intent to commit murder, arson, robbery, forgery and piracy as extraditable offenses. In 1890 the list was made to include voluntary manslaughter, counterfeiting, embezzlement, perjury, larceny, frauds by fiduciaries, rape, abduction and burglary. It is provided that the courts of the country in which the criminal is taken shall have power to determine whether the evidence presented shows him to be guilty. And further, that a fugitive shall not be surrendered for a political offense, and if surrendered for any other offense he shall not be tried for one of a political nature. The prisoner must be tried for the offense named in the extradition papers and for no other.

When an editor so far yields to passion as to suffer it to blind his better judgment and indulge in vituperation and abuse he always weakens his cause. The advice of the CAROLINIAN is, Don't —Genuine Early Rose Seed Potatoes at Robinson & Co.

Camden Superior Court this week, his Honor Judge Shuford presiding. There was a large attendance on Monday. Both State and civil dockets light. The homicide case removed from Currituck was postponed to the Fall term.

—Fowler & Co are ready for the fall trade—an immense stock.

A sad tragedy occurred at the home of Mr. Ellis Elliott, near Nixonton, on Sunday. Three of his boys aged 10, 12 and 14, were in a room playing with a gun which accidently exploded killing the oldest one instantly.

—Big shoes, little shoes, high grade shoes, low grade shoes, almost anything in the shoe line at Fowler & Co's.

LOCAL MENTION

Waking up.—The old Fair Grounds is about to be divided into building lots.—Several new houses are being put up on Lawrence street.—Postmaster Buckman and S. R. Carrow, of Washington, C. M. Bernard, of Greenville and R. T. Shavender, of Pantego, were in the city on Wednesday, and they all called and paid their respects to the CAROLINIAN.—The new Planing Mill of Commander & Son has begun work. It is larger and much more convenient than the old one.—Commissioner Modlin, several of the streets are badly needing attention.—Messrs Trim White and Ab. Aydlett have purchased the Kellenger property on Riverside.—Municipally speaking,

The "ins," of course, all want to stay.
'Twill be just as the voters say,

—There is a young man in town who classifies kissing as "one of the natural sciences."—The Ice Factory is shipping large quantities of ice, and it is of superior quality.—Our Young Man says that one reason why men see things so different is because no two can stand at the same place and look.—The sauntering heard a sensible lady residing in the Third Ward remark that she hoped that this year's spring-time would bring hats that will stay on the head without it being necessary to poke pins in the vacuum just under the hair.—Dare to be true, nothing can need a lie;
A fault that needs it most grows two thereby.

—The work on F. M. Grice's new residence fronting the CAROLINIAN Building is progressing.—Mr. Edward J. Hardin, of Raleigh, was here on Friday. Among others, he called to see Judge Pool, with whom he was a classmate in the University. They had not met for over twenty years.—The sociable given by the Ladies Aid Society of the Presbyterian Church at the residence of Prof. S. L. Sheep on upper Main street on Friday night was a very pleasant affair.—"I'll join you in a minute," is what the minister said to a couple who were waiting to be married.—Everybody reads the CAROLINIAN.—"As mad as a March hare" is when the wind whistles through a fellows whiskers and sends his hat flying down the street.—

Remember there are few on earth
On whom we can depend,
It is not every smiling face
That we can call a friend,

—Last Thursday night at the home of Mr. J W. Alexander his daughter Mary was married to Mr Davis Munden, Rev. E. M. Jordan officiating. After the marriage refreshments were served to the friends assembled.—An exhibition of bad manners is not the way to prove social superiority.—Mrs. John Wood and children of Edenton is visiting her mother Mrs. Col. Martin on Church street.—Never lose your temper. Nobody wants it; all have enough of their own.—Mr. Samuel Williams is making an extensive addition to his Livery stables on Poindexter street.—Thanks to a friend for nice sprigs of orange blossoms all the way from Florida. Their perfume was fragrantly sweet.—

The optimist already sees spring in vale and hill;
The pessimist looks 'round and finds signs of winter still

—"You don't suit me," said a fellow to one of our tailors who refused him credit.—Wood and coal have been big items of expense this winter.—The Localizer tenders acknowledgements for the many expressions of appreciation of what regularly appears in these columns.—All able and willing to work continue to find plenty to do.—The local market is beginning to be well supplied with the several varieties of fresh fish.—The CAROLINIAN'S country patrons are cordially invited to call in when they come to town. They will always find a welcome and a vacant chair.—The annual ditty of our neighbor over the way, beginning with

"Spring time has come, gentle Annie," is considerably belated this year,—It is said that nearby dates are fixed for the nuptuals of several more of Elizabeth City's society belles. Thus, one by one, they are joining the mated sisterhood.—As at Washington, so in Elizabeth City there is a lack of harmony among the Democratic brethren.—T. R. Bland, the veteral painter, is doing neat work on Kramer's new house.—The old electric light wires are all being taken out of the stores and residences in order to be ready for putting in new ones.—The CAROLINIAN believes that were a map made of the town, marking the serpentine boundaries of the gerrymandered Wards, the authors of the outrage would feel ashamed of it.—The Versifier this week hands in the following:

"Eat, drink and be merry," philosophers say,
The advice may be all very well in its way,
But the merriment part of it, some people think,
Depends upon what you may eat or may drink.

—Mr. G. Scott Bell, with headquarters at Sandy Point, informs the CAROLINIAN that fishing is improving.—There was 25 boats at the R R. depot on Monday morning unloading fish and taking on ice.—The CAROLINIAN acknowledges a call from Mr. H. M. Rogers, the good-looking and genial Fish dealer of New York. He arrived on Saturday and returned on Monday evening. He is a hustler.—Our friend Arthur Pritchard called yesterday. He has "pitched his tent" on Roanoke Island to embark in early truck ing. He understands the business. Success to him.—Mr. John Sherman, representing the Fish House of H. M. Rogers & Co, dropped in the other day and paid his respects. He understands and means business, and generally "gets there."—Mr. J. Shipp of New York is in the city. He is the father of Mr. P. S Shipp, the well known contractor, and expect to make Elizabeth City his home.—Gaston Bell, who was arrested on the charge of provoking a quarrel with a fellow student at the Academy, John Walker, of Currituck, and cutting him with a knife, had a hearing before the Mayor on Monday and was put under bond for appearance at Court.—The upper rooms in the new Fire Engine building are being fitted up for the use of the Mayor, Commissioners and Fire Department.—C. L. Callaway esq, of Belleionte, Pa, is registered at the Albemarle.—John W. Halstead esq, of Lilly, gave the CAROLINIAN a call yesterday. He is as full of vim and energy as ever.—Mr. W. W. Morrisette, of Shiloh, dropped in yesterday.

With the 19th century dawned the era of wonders. It has also proven an era of surprises—for notwithstanding its giant strides toward knowledge, we are told that there are in some places a few citizens who have not heard of Salvation Oil.

Be on time, for prevention is better than cure. All coughs and colds, throat and lung affections, are cured by Dr Bull's Cough Syrup. Only 25 cents.

The great vegetable substitute for pills is Simmons Liver Regulator. Cures sick headache.

It has been decided not to confer any honorary degrees at the next commencement at Chapel Hill.

Why will you suffer from indigestion and dyspepsia? Simmons Liver Regulator is pleasant and cures.

Specimen Cases,

S. H. Clifford, New Cassel, Wis., was troubled with Neuralgia and Rheumatism, his Stomach was disordered, his liver was affected to an alarming degree, appetite fell away, and he was terribly reduced in flesh and health. Three bottles of Electric Bitters cured him.

Edward Shepherd, Harrisburg, Ill, had a running sore on his leg of eight years' standing. Used three bottles of Electric Bitters and seven boxes Bucklen's Arnica Salve and his leg is sound and well. John Speaker, Catawba, O, had five large fever sores on his leg, doctors said he was incurable. One bottle Electric Bitters and one box Bucklen's Arnica Salve cured him entirely. Sold by Alex Wadsworth, druggist.

IF YOUR BACK ACHES
Or you are all worn out, really good for nothing it is general debility. Try
BROWN'S IRON BITTERS.
It will cure you and give a good appetite. Sold by all dealers in medicine.

A RAGING BLIZZARD.

Many States Experience the Worst Storm in Years.

Great Destruction to Life and Property Reported.

A dispatch from St. Paul, Minn., says: The late storm was one of the most severe experienced in the Northwest for many years. Advices from Northern Wisconsin the Dakotas, Minnesota and Iowa, show that it was far reaching and of the same degree of severity in all localities.

After raging with terrific fury for thirty hours the blizzard passed on to the Northwest, leaving in its wake intense cold, the mercury early in the morning reaching ten below, and at nine o'clock being one below.

Damage to property from the severity of the gale is reported at Fargo, Crookston and other places in South Dakota. Crookston's buildings suffered greatly from the breaking of plate glass, as well as being nearly blown down by the force of the storm, and many small buildings were demolished. Many buildings at Fergus Falls were unroofed and other damage done.

Ellendale, North Dakota, reports the county buildings damaged, and the farmers in that neighborhood have been compelled to postpone their seeding wheat, which was underway. Similar reports of damage to building are coming in from all over Minnesota and the Dakotas.

So far as the railroads were concerned the gale and blizzard got in their deadly work when it blew and drifted badly. Snow plows were out on every division.

One of the more serious results of the blizzard was a wreck on the Northern Pacific at Lake Park. A snow plow carrying two engines and running as the first section of the regular train had a head end collision at that point at half-past four A. M. with the first section of the passenger train. George Carr, engineer of the passenger train, was thrown with terrible force against the air brake valve in his caboose, one leg being frightfully torn and both badly scalded, while his head suffered severe contusions. Several other trainmen were badly shaken up.

The storm in Duluth was the worst known in Minnesota for years. Duluth was the storm centre of the Northwest. The wind blew sixty miles an hour. The thermometer was six degrees below zero, and nearly fifteen inches of snow fell. Business was entirely prostrated, the street car lines were abandoned, and the suburban trains made no effort to complete their trips after three o'clock in the afternoon. The damage done was great at West Duluth.

The smokestack of the Merrill & Ring sawmill was blown down. F. Cullen, an employe, was instantly killed and the two other men were injured. In nearly all the Superior street buildings plate glass was broken and several roofs were stripped of their tin, while on the Metropolitan block the cornice was blown into the street. An elevator on the roof was blown off and the false work badly damaged.

An elderly gentleman named Nugent perished in the storm that night three miles from Manze, North Dakota.

William M. Griffin, a farmer, was found frozen to death the other day half a mile from Devil's Lake, North Dakota. Griffin was returning from his farm and was caught in the blizzard. When a mile from town he abandoned his team and started to walk to the city. One ox was found dead near the wagon. The deceased man leaves a wife and three small children. Other abandoned teams are reported.

A man and his team was frozen between Grafton, North Dakota, and the depot. They were found by the stationman. The man was lying in the wagon-box. A couple married there came near suffering the same fate. They were overtaken by the storm two miles south of the town. Their team fortunately wandered into a warm corner. In the city considerable damage was done.

During the blizzard in Chicago, a three-story building in course of erection on North avenue and Mead street was blown down, and two workmen, N. Nobes and Willis Vallierre, were fatally injured.

A severe rainstorm, accompanied by a cold wind that attained tremendous velocity, passed over Washington shortly after noon. Many people were taken off their feet by the wind and some of them sustained injuries. The wife of Senator Palmer of Illinois was approaching the Capitol on foot when the storm broke. She was taken off her feet and thrown against some steps, suffering a deep cut in her head.

SENATOR PETTIGREW, of South Dakota, lived for many years in Sioux City, Iowa, in a log cabin that was his own handiwork. This was not long ago, for the Senator is even now not much beyond forty. He was a Vermont farmer's boy, and when attracted to the West he walked much of the distance. His first investment of money was a lucky one, for he bought some of the land on which Sioux City now stands, and in this his present fortune had its source.

McGinn began to tell a story to the company. His sister, who stood near him with her infant in her arms, interrupted him.

McGinn, who had been drinking, was surly, and when she persisted that he had not got the story right he struck her on the mouth with his clenched fist, cutting both of her lips and drawing blood. She staggered udner the blow. Not content with this he struck her in the face several times. One eye was discolored and her face shows bruises.

She called her brother a coward and a cur as she still stood in front of him with her babe in her arms and threatened vengence. No one had interfered to protect her. McGinn laughed in her face and said:

"Why don't you take your vengeance now?"

As he spoke he drew a long-bladed sharp clasp knife from his pocket, and opening it, handed it to her. In an instant the infuriated woman had driven the blade deeply into his left breast, just below the heart. McGinn ran down into the street, and staggered into William Weiss's drug store.

LYNCHED BY A MOB.

Three Bushwhackers Shot to Death at Memphis, Tenn.

The Victims Ambushed and Killed Four Deputy Sheriffs.

A dispatch from Memphis, Tenn., says: A masked mob of seventy-five men took three colored prisoners from the jail at three A. M., marched them to an open lot about a mile and a half from the heart of the city and shot them to death. The bodies, riddled by bullets and partly covered with brush, were discovered at daybreak.

The names of the colored men are Calvin McDowell, William Stuart and Theodore Moss. The crime for which they were killed was the ambushing and shooting down of four deputy sheriffs in a notorious locality known as "The Curve" while they were looking for a colored man for whose arrest they had a warrant.

The mob appeared suddenly on Front street, near the jail. Watchman O'Donnell was in the jail office having a chat with a friend named Seat, when a ring was heard at the outer gate.

O'Donnell walked to the door of the jail and asked, "Who's there?"

"Hugh Williams, of White Haven," came the reply. "I have a prisoner."

"All right," said O'Donnell. "This is the place, and I am always ready to receive them."

He unlocked the gate, and two or three men pushed in. O'Donnell did not notice them closely at that moment, but when he turned to inquire which was the prisoner he saw that he had been trapped. The men were masked.

"What does this mean?" queried the watchman as he reached for his pistol.

"No you don't!" exclaimed the masked men as they seized his arms and forced him against the wall.

Three men who seized O'Donnell spoke loudly, and then fully seventy-two men, all wearing black masks, rushed through the gate and confronted the astounded watchman.

There was a consultation, a wait of a minute, and soon a rope was produced, with which the watchman's hands were bound. Two men were then put over O'Donnell as guard, and two others went into the jail office.

Senior Williams meanwhile was asleep up stairs, totally unconscious of what was going on below.

Soon came the cry, "All right, boys; here they are," and after making sure that O'Donnell was safely pinioned, the men filed past him into the jail, and in a minute were in the cell room of the colored department.

There were twenty-seven colored men there, all under arrest for complicity in the affair, and it was no easy matter for the men to distinguish the ones they wanted. They went from cell to cell, the thoroughly alarmed inmates coming to the cell doors and unwittingly aiding them in the search.

Alice Mitchell, who murdered her girl friend, hear l the noise, and from her cell on the upper tier looked down at the mob. Not a word was spoken as the men went along the rows of cells.

Then there was a little scuffle, a hand was clapped over a mouth and Moss, the mail carrier, was in the possession of the mob and bound.

McDowell was next found, and then Stuart and the party was ready to start. The captives being ready they were dragged out of the jail in a hurry. Turning into Auction street they went toward the Mississippi River, stopping, however, as they reached the tracks of the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad.

A few words in an undertone were taken as an order and the men started north along the tracks. The prisoners securely bound were kept moving at a hot pace. The suburbs of the city were reached and in an open field near Wolf River the victims for the first time were allowed to speak.

As the gags were removed Moss said: "If you are going to kill us turn our faces to the west."

Scarcely had he uttered the words when a ball went through his cheek. This was the signal for the work. A volley was poured in upon them.

McDowell fell face downward, but Moss and Stuart fell over each other, and when the bodies were found next morning they lay close together. They presented a horrible sight. McDowell's jaw was entirely shot away and back of his right ear there was a hole large enough to admit a man's fist. His right hand, too, had been half blown away as if in self-defence he had grabbed the muzzle of a shotgun. Stuart was shot in the mouth and twice in the back of the head. His body was riddled with buckshot. Moss had one ear shot off and several bullet holes in his forehead.

The mob, after it had completed its terrible work, came toward the town. At the first crossing it scattered.

OUT OF DANGER.

Congressman Springer's Physicians Declare Him Convalescent.

WILLIAM M. SPRINGER.

Congressman Springer, Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee of the House of Representatives, has been near death's door, but is now considered practically out of danger. A final consultation of the three attending physicians was held a few days since, and at its conclusion Dr. John A. Vincent, his Illinois physician, who left Washington for home the same night, made the following statement:

"Last Sunday and Sunday night the condition of Mr. Springer was critical in the extreme, so much so that we considered him worse than at any time during his illness. Since then the improvement has been steady, till now his condition is such that we can see no reason why he should not go right along to complete convalescence. Up to this hour he has held everything gained. Pulse and temperature are normal. That distressing cough has left him. The erysipelas has almost entirely disappeared from his face. His appetite is fairly good. The delirium and coma have been entirely overcome.

"But his prostration is so complete that he can scarcely speak above a whisper. The building-up process must necessarily be slow, but with the excellent nursing and skillful treatment of Drs. Curtis and Verdi, recovery now seems assured."

THOUSANDS TO CHARITY.

The will of the late Major-General George W. Cullum, United States Army, was filed for probate in the Surrogate's Office, New York City. The bequests of a public nature are as follows:

Woman's Hospital, $6000; New York Cancer Hospital, $10,000; St. Thomas Church, $5000; Society for the Improvement of the Condition of the Poor, $5000; Old Ladies' Home, San Francisco, $5000; Meadville, Penn., Historical Society, $5000; Redwood Library, Newport, R. I., $5000; Metropolitan Museum of Art, $20,000; to the United States Government $250,000 to erect a memorial hall at West Point; $20,000 to professors at West Point in trust to have paintings made of the military academy's distinguished graduates to be hung in the memorial hall; Association of Graduation of the Military Academy, $10,000; also all manuscrips, letters, notes, pamphlets and publications on military subjects of deceased; the sword presented by the ladies of St. Louis, Mo., to Major-General Henry W. Halleck to Memorial Hall; the American Geographical Society, $5000.

MILLIONS of herring are now swarming in the harbor in Semiahmoo Bay and the Gulf of Georgia, and are being caught by the ton by Blaine (Washington) fishermen and salted in barrels for market.

JEALOUSY THE CAUSE.

A United States Naval Officer Kills an English Banker.

George Gower Robinson, a well-known resident of Yokohama, Japan, was shot and killed by Lieutenant J. H. Hetherington, of the United States steamer Marion. The latter, it is alleged, was jealous of Robinson's attentions to Mrs. Hetherington. The Lieutenant surrendered himself and was confined aboard the Marion.

Robinson, the young man killed by Hetherington, was a banker. He was born in Yokohama and educated in England. He was handsome, and moved in the best society, and being a well-known man-about-town was extremely popular. Some time ago he began paying attentions to Mrs. Hetherington and was so devoted that their intimacy became the gossip of the town. Hetherington told Robinson that he must refrain from seeing Mrs. Hetherington, and that he had better leave town. Robinson promised to obey and went away. In two weeks he returned and became more devoted than ever to Mrs. Hetherington.

Robinson with a friend named Paris was out driving, when some one on the road called out for him to stop. Robinson pulled up his team, when immediately two shots were fired from a pistol. The first one missed, but the second took effect in Robinson's groin and he fell out of the buggy dead. Public sympathy is largely with Hetherington.

Lieutenant Hetherington was appointed to Annapolis Naval Academy from Iowa in 1874, and was promoted to a lieutenancy in October, 1889.

BURNED AT THE STAKE.

Terrible Revenge of Indians on a Supposed Witch.

Among the Indians to the west of Chihuahua, Mexico, the belief in witchcraft is general, and for a number of years an old woman has held the Indians of that locality in great fear by her alleged powers over life and death and was accused of eating young children.

When the woman was known to be away from her house a party of men went there and found horrible evidences that she had indeed indulged in meals of children's flesh. There were not only the bones to be seen, but a partly eaten child was found.

When she returned she was burned at the stake and the people ate small particles of her body in order to keep off any evils that might befall them for killing her.

Remarkable Musical Prodigy.

Blind Boone was born in Miami, Saline County, Mo., in 1863. His mother was a contraband, cooking for Federal soldiers. He lost his sight with brain fever when only six months old. His first musical instrument was a tin whistle, on which he could play any ordinary air after once hearing it. His next, with a mouth-organ, charmed all the young folks of Warrensburg, where his home was. Some Warrensburg people sent him to a blind school to learn a trade, but his bent was towards music, and the attempt to teach him anything else was a failure. He left school and, with a little company, tramped around through the State. Finally John Lange, of Columbia, a shrewd, intelligent colored man, took hold of the prodigy, fitted up a company, and Boone is now playing under his management, pleasing audiences all over the United States and Canada. He has amassed considerable fortune, has an elegant home in Columbia, gives liberally to every good cause, and is respected by all his acquaintances. He is the most remarkable musical prodigy of the present generation.—Columbia (Mo.) Herald.

Bumble Bees in New Zealand.

The introduction of the bumble bee into New Zealand a few years ago to secure the fertilization of the red clover, and the remarkable success of this venture are matters of record. In a recent paper George M. Thomson presents an interesting article on the Bombi introduced in New Zealand, giving also a list of the plants and flowers which are visited by these bees. He makes the interesting statement that, with a few exceptions, he has never heard of these bees visiting the flowers of indigenous plants, but states that they have become so extraordinarily abundant that the question has even arisen in his mind as to whether they would not become as serious a pest to the apiarist as the rabbits have proved to the farmer and cultivator, on account of their absorbing so much of the nectar of the flowers. He also points out the remarkable fact in connection with the life of the bumble bee in New Zealand, that in many parts of the colony it does not seem to hibernate at all, but is to be seen daily on flowers all the year round.—Insect Life.

J. D. WILLCOX.

One of the Oldest Settlers in Penna.

J. D. Willcox was born sixty-seven years ago and has lived most of his time in Olmsville, Tioga Co., Pa., where he is a practical farmer and a successful country merchant. He is deservedly popular, known for many miles around, and by strict integrity and honesty he has attached to himself a host of friends, and has received from the Government the Posmastership of his village. He says: I had been weighed down by poor health for a long time and gradually grew worse until some four years ago the crisis came. At that time four of our best physicians could give me no encouragement, and some of them said I would not live a year. I commenced to use Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, Kidney, Liver and Bladder Cure. My doctors said your remedy might help me for a time, but that I would not be here a year hence. I took Swamp-Root for nearly twelve months three times a day, and when the rheumatism set in on my shoulders and arms I used your U. & O. Anointment rubbing in thoroughly over the affected parts, also across my chest, liver and back, warming it in with a hot fl
